Foldable story scenes

Kindergarten-Grade 5 with support | 20-30 minutes | Make a story in three parts

Gather

Paper or light card, crayons, scissors, and removable tape or glue. A ruler may help with folding.

Make together

1. Draw a place and story in the three panels on page 2.
2. Cut around the thick outside rectangle.
3. Fold one dashed line backward and the other forward to make a zigzag. Open the panels a little so they stand on the straight bottom edge.
4. Add cards from page 3. Page 4 helps you plan another ending.

Ways to join in

An adult stays nearby for scissors and assembly. Offer left- or right-handed scissors as appropriate. A child may point, draw, use AAC, direct a partner, or ask for help. For a no-cut version, leave the page whole and point to the pictures.

Practice with your hands

Coloring, cutting long straight lines, lining up folds, pressing a crease, and placing pictures. An adult may prepare the folds or cut the pieces first.

Tell a story

First: Who is here and what do they want? Next: What changes or feels tricky? Last: What could they try? A story may have more than one helpful ending.

Use with Tactile Storytelling & Sensory Boards, Buddy read-along stories, or Practice Together. Invite a family story, language, place, or routine into your scene.

Print on US Letter paper at 100% / Actual size. Black-and-white copies work well. You may print, copy, and adapt these original pages for your home or classroom. Skill practice is flexible; these pages are not an assessment or therapy program.

First, next, last

Make one scene across all three panels, or draw a different moment in each.

Fold the two dashed lines in opposite directions. Stand the scene on the straight bottom edge. For a no-cut version, use this page flat as a story mat.

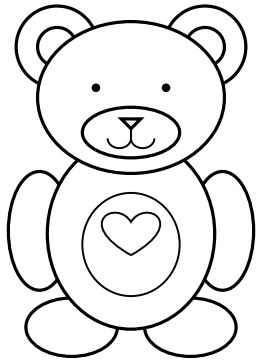

Characters and places

Color and cut the thick borders. Move or tape these cards onto your scene.

Thin lines are for coloring.

My own idea

Draw a character
or something they need.

Try another ending

Plan with words, drawings, symbols, a partner, or your imagination.

My characters want...

What matters to each character?

Something changes when...

A tool is busy, a plan changes, or a new friend arrives.

They could try...

Show one plan. Then imagine a different plan.

Ask together: Which part would you change? Is there a word or way of caring from home you want to add? You can leave any part blank.
